Featuring Jan Wright

Talent author and local historian Jan Wright has served in various functions in the Talent Historical Society for more than a decade.

If the weather (smoke) permits, Jan will give a walking tour of downtown Talent's business center. She will discuss various businesses that have called Talent home along with pointing out several local landmark buildings that give our town its character. If the weather does not allow the walking tour, Jan will give a presentation in our air-conditioned museum on the same subject.

Jan currently holds the position of Secretary on the Talent Historical Society board. She is also the Society's Historian. Jan is the author of "Images of America – Talent" and will be publishing a much-awaited biography of John Beeson this fall.

You do not need to be a member of the Talent Historical Society to attend.

Well behaved children are welcome and encouraged to attend.

There is no admission charged but donations are gladly accepted.

Talent Historical Society Museum is located at 105 North Market Street in Talent, Oregon
